

CAVE HOMO

IT'S PRIDE MONTH and we're having a release event in New York for the second issue of our queer magazine, CAVE HOMO, featuring the out professional lesbian skateboarder Lacey Baker and contributions from 17 influential queer artists.

CAVE HOMO is a QUEER creative project. We showcase members of our community who inspire us to be our complete selves unapologetically. Participants show aspects of themselves that might otherwise go uncelebrated, for an intimate and vulnerable look into their lives. Queer Art and Creativity are the core of Cave Homo, and Volume II firmly establishes that.

The section dedicated solely to the out queer professional skateboarder Lacey Baker is comprised of two original, all female crew shoots by photographers Allison Michael Orenstein and Tatum Mangus. Photographer Paul M. Roura also contributed images from his collection of work with Baker. Lacey recently won Street League Skateboarding Super Crown, The Berrics's "Populist" vote for 2017, picked up major sponsorship joining the Nike SB Team, and is at the forefront of the industry. Volume II gives us a look into the daily life and skateboarding, as well as a peek at an almost alternate reality of who Lacey is. In this collection of photographs, Baker takes control of the public's perception by giving us a look at an out and proud queer, juxtaposed with a feminine image that was suggested by society, but was not chosen. It encourages us all to embrace the power found in being true to ourselves.

The inverse section introduces Cave Homo VISUALS, over 70 pages exploring the work of 17 contributing queer artists selected by Cave Homo's creator, Luke Williams. The work includes a range of disciplines from street art, illustration, performance, photography to painting, and sculpture. While varying in mediums, Luke found a common thread in the work of friends that expresses a freeform visual narrative of the queer experience, inclusive of diverse sexual identities, gender expressions, races, body types and backgrounds. Art by David Wojnarowicz, Ryan McGinley photos of Chef Matty Matheson, Brendan Fernandes, Chuck Nanney, Phranc are just some of the contributions to the issue.

VISUALS is concluded by Paul M. Roura's photographs of out gay professional skateboarder, Brian Anderson, giving us an intimate follow up of what Brian has been up to since the release of our inaugural issue which featured him exclusively. A portion of Volume II's proceeds will benefit The Trevor Project.

Volume II is a 7.5"x10", 108 page, full color gloss, offset printed magazine. It is a hand numbered edition limited to 666 copies, self published and self distributed. It is a double issue with two covers. In addition to the magazine, two stickers, a post card and 22"x34" 50lbs newsprint poster are included.

Come celebrate PRIDE at the release and pick up a copy of CAVE HOMO Volume 2:
Saturday June 23rd from 5-9pm at FIERMAN gallery, 127 Henry Street NY NY
